

Tuple is a collection in python which holds multiple elements of different type. It is represented by (). It is immutable, orderable, indexable and iterable.

The primary difference between tuple and list is lists are mutable where as tuples are not.